...to cite an interesting fact recently published in the United States, today there are approximately 50 million people who want to live differently - not in a consumer society. In 1993 this figure was 2 million, so there has been strong growth. Polls conducted by the European Community confirm these figures for our continent. The attitude is gaining ground also in China, India, Africa and Latin America. Our challenge is to draw attention to the need for change not only for the politics of others, but for our own politics as well...
